SIDELIGHTS ON THE CAMPAIGN AS SEEN FROM SAN FRANCISCO

Star-Bulletin's California Correspondent Talks of Politics and Humor

By E. N. SMITH.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 27.—We've all pretty nearly made up our minds how we'll tag ourselves in November, but even so, that doesn't take away from the enjoyment one can get in listening to the thrusts and gibes, and smashes and verbal sledge hammer blows the stump speakers deal out. I've been attending a lot of political rallies lately, just to learn how narrow and how big my political beliefs were. I've been jarred to think how small I've been, and I've smiled with smug satisfaction to know that Bryan, or Taft or Roosevelt thinks the way I do. I've blushed when a woman derided what I thought were sincere beliefs, and blushed again when an equally illustrious feminine commended some inward thoughts.

If you're for Roosevelt you shrieked aloud, as did many about me, when he signed an opposing Californian to the Ananias Club. Then along comes Adam Bede and tells you "With Roosevelt lying isn't a habit—it's a gift."

At Armageddon.
"We stand at Armageddon and we fight on the side of the Lord," thundered Roosevelt, while a blatant surrounding crew of illiterate politicians looked wonderingly as though to ask, "Where in hell is Armageddon and whose the candidate from that district?" And then comes back the night of two later from a wit speaker.

"This Bull Moose you know is 1 per cent. moose and 99 per cent. Bull."

Not bad you see, no matter where your sympathies be. "Taft is a large body surrounded by men who know exactly what they want" intimated a Bull Moose. And Adam Bede came back. "I organized a company of boys scouts back in Minnesota, and the first thing I did was to provide them with a gymnasium with wrestling mats and boxing gloves and everything that goes with the presidency."

Now comes Berger, the Socialist Congressman, who spoke here night before last. "Taft is honest but unable to see anything but his own side. Wilson will be a tool of the capitalists and be another Cleveland. Roosevelt thinks trusts are a natural outcome of conditions, but those that support him are good trusts and those in opposition are bad?" Believe that? Then you must be a Socialist.

Now listen to John Harlan, son of the former jurist. "Roosevelt bosses his popularity on the crowds that turn out to hear him. About the same sized crowds attend Ringling Bros. Circus. The only difference between the two is that Ringling's have the greatest show on earth and Roosevelt has no show at all."

Score for Harlan.
"You should vote for Taft you people of California, if for no other reason than he gave you the Panama-Pacific World's fair." Great cheers for Harlan and Taft.

Enter Frank Henry with this introduction. "I present to you Theodore Roosevelt, the man who made the world's fair possible by building the Panama Canal."

Tremendous noise from the Bull Moose and the—"Moosierines."

As To Wilson.
Haven't heard much about Wilson yet have you? Well as Bryan explained it the other day in a speech in San Francisco. "To proceed in a logical manner I can discuss Wilson who will serve a first term if elected. Taft who will serve a second term if elected, and Roosevelt who will serve as long as he can. The Chicago Republican convention began as a tragedy, ended as a comedy. For a while it was almost lost to the contending factors of laughter."

"Wilson stands for one term" declared Bryan. "What little forms there are in the so-called third term movement is taken from the Democratic platform. That platform is fostered by Democratic ideals, and Woodrow Wilson is the logical man to carry out these ideals constructively and competently."

"Professor Wilson" sneers Roosevelt, with the accent on the professor, intimating to the common people whom he loves. "What can a Professor know of the practical things of life," a clever bit of psychology, when repeated and reiterated.

"Wilson is an amiable and cultivated man, but the theory of government which he professes in a theory proposed in a few universities a generation after it had been abandoned by every man and woman engaged in practical work for social betterment." Drawing a Bede.

Here comes Adam Bede with "Theodore yells for us to have big families, and then the first thing he does is to bring on a panic so they can't be clothed or fed."

And he continues apropos of things in general "Talk about the high cost of living. I saw a sign in the New York street cars calling attention to a fine of $500 for spitting on street cars—and a few years ago we spit for nothing."

"The Socialist party is the only one that has recognized woman's suffrage since 1850," declared Congressman Berger's wife from the local platform.

Here's Bryan again. "Taft has made so many mistakes that one more or less wouldn't count. Roosevelt's glaring defect is that he is too trusting of himself, and no man has better reason to doubt his own judgment in selecting presidents than Roosevelt himself. Now he wants to be rewarded for having put a failure in the White House."

Here's another string of Bede's. "The Democrats look good to me this year because I'm an optimist—but I'm not enough of an optimist to believe in good coming from their being in power. I believe in the other watching it. I believe the Democrats make the best watchers."

And here's the other fist. "Theodore Roosevelt wasn't within gunshot of San Juan hill when the battle was on, and he hasn't been that near to a fact since. We've been electing him on things that didn't happen."

Necessarily all speakers dwelt on modern conditions. And back and forth the buck flew as each party tried to blame the other for the present pleasant condition where it is so easy to enjoy one's self at a high cost. Everything was touched upon from automobiling to living in high-priced hotels where luxury has taken the place of refinement.

"Most Americans think today that if they buy an automobile the government ought to make the repairs. Many an American pays more for gasoline than his grandfather did for groceries. Don't ask for civilization on the half shell and then complain of the cost."

Naturally it's impossible to have any political fracas and omit the women. They'll "fracas" whenever the opportunity offers. They got up a political debate and rally in San Francisco for women, and the latter, far bolder than mere men, put a representative of each candidate on the platform and right then and there everybody had it out.

Oh, Gertrude!

Gertrude Atherton, the authoress, a Democrat, opined thusly: "The reason Woodrow Wilson is not understood better is that he is not always using the pronoun 'I'; and secondly, because he writes so well. I hope I will not be tempted to call Mr. Roosevelt a liar, but I would suggest that as the distinguished founder of the Ananias Club it is now time for him to assume the presidency of that organization. Roosevelt, at 50 odd years, looks like a cave man; Wilson has a clear-cut, keen, civilized face."

Mrs. Calkins Brooke, the Socialist speaker, declared that "Roosevelt asks women to forget the seven tragic years of his reign; to think of him as a creature fresh from God, with eyes newly opened to behold—a woman. Do not go to the polls like an enfranchised Tribble and vote for any one of the three capitalistic Svengalis, but vote for the co-operative commonwealth, the kingdom of heaven on earth."

One Woman's Epigram.

Here's an epigram from the speech of Mrs. Alice Prescott Smith, the Republican speaker: "The average woman looks upon the tariff as something that she has inherited, like a pug nose and black walnut furniture."

And here's the trusting statement of the Progressive speaker, Mrs. Ida Finney Mackville: "The Democrats have only a man. The Progressives have both the man and the platform—a definite, sacred covenant with the people. Roosevelt is one of the great souls who prepared the ground for woman suffrage."

Just the speaking wasn't the whole thing in that convention—not by a long shot.

Men were served with due notice that the day of the spell-binding and baby-kissing politician was past. Women might be swept off their feet by temporary emotion, but underneath was a woman's clear sense and firm faith in righteousness.

The women themselves admitted they were all idealists and progressives. They differ in remedies, and they seek a sane, practical, housewifely solution of the immediate problems.

Despite all arguments, they innately hold some things are right, and they demand that these things be done.

They haven't, according to themselves, sunk so low as the men, who will spend most of their time scrapping about what particular man will go all these things—and it really looks as though the women were right.

BURMA RUBBER ON EXHIBIT IN NEW YORK

The Lower Burma Rubber Planters Association has decided to place an exhibit in the forthcoming New York Rubber Exposition. The expenses of the exhibition and of sending a representative to New York will amount to $2,350, of which the local government will probably contribute $1,350, for which the sanction of the Government of India is required. The balance is to be raised by private subscriptions. It is suggested that the stall should be a typical Burmese exhibit, carved teakwood posts and canopy, a pagoda hung with rubber, and a pamphlet about Burma as a rubber-growing country with photographs of the different estates, etc.

The present conditions of land tenure for rubber in Burma are eight years' free tenure, afterwards a rent per acre of any amount up to a maximum of $8.30. The Lower Burma Rubber Planters' Association will ask the Government to fix the rent at a definite rate, as a possibility of the maximum being imposed, it is claimed, has seriously handicapped the rubber industry by frightening away capital. There is an alternative suggestion of an ad valorem duty being imposed. This, it is feared, would affect the producing estates considerably, and from their point of view the maximum rent would be preferable. At present there is no guaranty from the Government that an ad valorem duty will not be imposed in connection with the rent of $8.30 per acre.—Consul General Michael's Report.
